Jury suggests raising bar age

JEFF MADSEN

The recent death of an Eastern student prompted a coroner's jury to recommend that Charleston bars raise their admittance age from 19 to 21. The inquest into the death of Jennifer M. Woods, 18, who died in an auto accident, determined her death was accidental.

Aug. 7 auto accident, determined her death was accidental.

The inquest also revealed alcohol had played a role.

"At the time of admission to the hospital, Ms. Wood's blood alcohol level was 1.80," said Coles County Coroner Richard Lynch, noting her blood-alcohol level was almost twice Illinois' legal intoxication limit.

Woods' car collided with a truck at South Fourth Street and Lincoln Highway, just south of Charleston. The accident occurred about 1 a.m. Aug. 7.

The driver of the truck, Ronald L. Cohoon, 35, of Charleston reportedly had the right-of-way.

"My feeling is Ms. Woods came up to the stop sign, slowed down, did not see anything there and moved out," Lynch said to the jury.

Woods was transported to Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center, where she died an hour later from lacerations to the liver and spleen.

Woods and two of her friends had been drinking prior to the accident. Woods' friends, who testified to the jury, are 17 and 18 years old. One said she is a student at Charleston High School.

Woods' friends reported they were allowed into Marty's, 1666 Fourth St., without being checked for identification. They had purchased three pitchers of beer within 45 minutes.

The teens had also been allowed into Marty's and served about two weeks before the accident.

Charleston city ordinances permit 19-year-olds to enter bars, but they must be at least 21 to drink.

Economic indicators face biggest drop since market crash

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government said Tuesday its chief forecasting gauge of future economic activity suffered the steepest drop in eight months in July, but few analysts expect a substantial slackening in growth anytime soon.

The 0.8 percent decline in the Commerce Department's Index of Leading Economic Indicators was the biggest since last November, when the index dropped 1.0 percent in the aftermath of the October stock market crash.

However, economists noted that the index posted an exceptionally strong increase in June and cautioned against reading too much into a one-month downturn.

In a separate report, the Commerce Department said orders to U.S. factories for manufactured goods plunged 3.5 percent in July, the worst decline in 18 months. But that drop followed a very strong showing in June and was heavily influenced by a wide swing in orders for military equipment.

The economy, as measured by the gross national product, grew at a 3.3 percent annual rate in the three months ended in June and at a 3.4 percent pace in the first quarter.

White House spokesman B. Jay Cooper, in California with the vacationing President Reagan, said, "The data suggest continued economic growth in the months ahead, although at a more moderate pace than in the first half" of the year.

However, the very strength that dispelled financial markets' worries about a recession is fueling concern that the economy is expanding at a too-rapid pace that will lead to faster inflation.

In an effort to ease inflationary pressures, the Federal Reserve Board has been attempting to dampen economic growth by pushing up short-term interest rates since late March. On August 9, it took its most dramatic inflation-fighting move by raising the discount rate, its key bank lending rate, by a half percentage point.

Lawrence Chimerine, chairman of the Wefa Group, a Bala Cynwyd, Pennsylvania economic forecasting firm, said Tuesday's reports should help encourage the Fed to hold off on any further tightening moves unless new evidence of inflation surfaces.

Students face suits

ANDY CLYMORE

After living a rent free summer at home, many students must start paying rent once they return to campus. Some tenants have a hard time paying, and they must do so or face going to court. Two lawsuits totaling more than $7,000 have been filed against eight Eastern students who neglected to pay rent last year.

According to Attorney Stephen Davis, Eastern's Student Legal Service, if a student does not pay his rent it is a "breach of contract" and may be subject to pay extra costs. If a tenant is sued by his landlord "court costs, an attorney's hourly fee of approximately $120 plus any late fee costs stated in the lease may have to be paid," Davis said.

If it is a joint lease, all roommates whom signed could be held responsible for those not paying their share of the rent. Although it is rare to issue separate leases, Davis feels it "would be better for the students, but the landlord usually won't go for it."

One suggestion Davis had to ensure the rent being paid is to have a parent (or legal guardian) of the student to co-sign the lease. He said, "make the parents responsible because most students are supported by their parents and live at home."

Area woman shoots husband

By Pete Scales
Staff Writer

A Martinsville businessman was listed in stable condition Tuesday, after his wife reportedly shot him twice in the chest.

A Terre Haute Regional Hospital spokesperson said William "Butch" Hedrick's condition had been upgraded from satisfactory to stable. Hedrick, who was initially admitted to the hospital's intensive care unit, will be "moved to a regular floor Wednesday," the spokesperson said.

The hospital would not comment on the extent or nature of Hedrick's wounds.

Meanwhile, police are searching for Phyllis Hedrick, 40 of Martinsville in connection with the shooting of her husband.

Hedrick reportedly shot her husband with a .22 caliber handgun early Monday morning in their home. After the shooting, police believe she went to her husband's business, Littlejohn Grain Inc., and set fire to records there.

A motive has not been determined in the shooting. Martinsville Police, Clark County Sheriff's officials and the Illinois State Police refused to comment on the pending investigation.

Martinsville is a small Illinois community located about 30 miles southeast of Charleston.

College bonds go on sale

SPRINGFIELD, IL (AP) - Parents and investors who missed out on Illinois' first sale of tax-free college savings bonds will get another chance next week when a $175 million bond offering goes on sale, officials said Tuesday.

Most banks and brokerage houses in Illinois will begin taking orders for the $5,000 bonds on Sept. 6, next Tuesday, and continue through Sept. 13.

The state general-obligation bonds are to be offered at maturities ranging from five to 20 years, a feature designed to coincide with the college years of children.

"As college expenses continue to climb, it is important for parents to anticipate the impact of college-related costs on their budgets," Gov. Thompson said in a statement announcing the sale.

Jackson reaches deal

CHICAGO (AP) - Jesse Jackson has reached an out-of-court settlement with a company that sold thousands of videotapes of the former presidential candidate's address to the Democratic National Convention, attorneys said Tuesday.

"Yes, there has been a settlement," said Eric Cohen, an attorney for MPI Home Video. "But I believe the terms are confidential."

Jackson's attorney, Henry Mason, also refused to discuss the agreement, and both sides refused to say whether the sale of more tapes in the future would be allowed.

"The parties have reached an agreement in principle," Mason said. "We hope to wrap it up in the next ten days or so," Mason added.

Bennett applauds Chicago School

WASHINGTON (AP) - Less than a year after pointing to the Chicago public schools as a textbook example of classroom failure, Education Secretary William J. Bennett cited an elementary school in the city as one of the nation's best.

At a news conference Tuesday where he proposed a model elementary-school curriculum emphasizing mathematics, science, and languages, Bennett praised the LaSalle Language Academy for "the depth and thoroughness of (its) curriculum."

LaSalle, a magnet school in Chicago's inner city, has adopted a language program that draws students from every ethnic and socio-economic group in the city, the secretary said in a report outlining his "James Madison Elementary School" curriculum plan.

The praise followed Bennett's far more critical comments about Chicago public schools in November, when he characterized the system as one of the worst in the country.

Department of Education spokesman Mike Becker said the secretary stands by his criticism despite the glowing comments about LaSalle.

A.E. Staley offers Decatur water

DECATUR, IL (AP) - A.E. Staley Manufacturing Co. is offering to help this central Illinois community with its water shortage by pumping millions of gallons of water back into a city lake.

But there's a hitch. The water may be slightly polluted with some of the high fructose corn sweeteners or corn-based starches the company makes.

"If this is a crisis, we have some ideas," said Art Schoepfer, Staley plant manager. "If people are willing to sort of share the risk with us we're willing to give it a try."

Schoepfer said the company is trying to cut back on water usage.

But he said the biggest contribution Staley could make to ease the water crunch would be to recycle some of the millions of gallons of water it uses each day in its corn-milling processes.

Staley is offering to pump 10 million gallons a day back into Lake Decatur, the city water supply.

The Decatur City Council moved Monday to ask the Illinois Pollution Control Board for permission to recycle the water.

Hoaxed talk shows are powerless

NEW YORK (AP) - There's no way for TV talk shows to fully defend themselves against phony intent on putting one over on them but such hoaxes are rare, producers said after two actors said they posed as guests with sexual problems.

"If someone really has the intention to put one over on you, I'm not sure what all the safeguards are to protect yourself," said Delia Fine, senior producer of "Geraldo," one of the shows duped by part-time performers Tani Freiwald, 37, and Wes Bailey, 33.

Shows like Geraldo, Oprah Winfrey's, and Sally Jessy Raphael's do check out their guests, but the two actors were not by because they were recommended by a psychologist to the shows' staffs.

BSU recruitment night draws 40 members

WOODSON

The Black Student Union (BSU) recruitment night showed great promise for the upcoming year by recruiting an estimated 40 new members.

Burks, a member of BSU said she saw a lot of freshmen show up for the Black Student Union sponsored events during the year. It shows they are getting involved."

Recruitment night showed to be one of the highlights for BSU. An estimated 40 students attended the organizational meeting. During the meeting, old and new members announced their names and introduced themselves. There was also a presentation that gave new interested members a chance to see what BSU sponsored during the academic year.

Malone, former president of BSU said "I like to see BSU get more involved with other organizations, but I know it's hard to."

Tracy Payne, a freshmen interested in joining BSU said recruitment night was nice. "It gave me a chance to meet more black students," Payne said. She added "it's nice to have a lot of black individuals together."

Fees for members are $12 a year. The fee covers a free BSU t-shirt, a membership card, a certificate of membership, and also free admission to all BSU social events. Students who are interested in joining BSU can go to the Student Activities Office located on the third floor of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Audra Bowie, president of BSU said that she hopes the students who came to recruitment night received "some insight on what we're (BSU) is doing."

Faculty Senate considers idea from SIU senator

HARRIS

Eastern's Faculty Senate discussed the possibility of the formation of an ad hoc committee to work with state legislators at the senate meeting of the Tuesday.

The proposal, initiated by Paige, president of the Faculty Senate at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, would gather all faculty senate chairs from each of the 12 state universities to form a single committee to deliberate with state legislators.

But Gary Foster, Eastern's faculty senate chair, voiced concern that schools with collective bargaining, such as Eastern, would have difficulty naming the senate chair as the only spokesperson to the proposed committee.

The faculty senate decided that more research needs to be done concerning formation of the committee before a decision can be made.

Although Vic Robeson, director of the physical plant, was originally scheduled to attend the senate meeting Tuesday to address the smoke pollution problem with the new coal conversion plant, he notified Foster that the problem had been corrected. Therefore, Foster cancelled Robeson's meeting with the senate.

In other business, Patrick Coulton, assistant mathematics professor, and Janet Marquardt-

Cherry, assistant art professor, were appointed to the Employee Recognition Committee.

Eastern President Stan Rives notified the senate that he would attend meetings scheduled for Sept. 13, Oct. 11 and Nov. 8. The Faculty Senate meets at 2 p.m. every Tuesday in the Union addition Martinsville Room.

Six Americans among death toll for Air Show

RAMSTEIN, West Germany — The Pentagon said today six Americans were among 40 people killed when three Italian jets collided at an air show, one hurtling into a crowd in flames.

West German authorities said they have identified 12 of the killed Sunday at the U.S. Air Show at Ramstein. Two days after the disaster, there were conflicting reports on the total number of dead. In Washington, chief Pentagon spokesman Dan Howard said the Pentagon count put the number of confirmed fatalities at 40, including six Americans, four Germans, three Italians and 27 people of unknown nationality.

Of the six Americans, two were active-duty military personnel, three were dependents and one is unknown, Howard said.

He said the Defense Department was trying to resolve conflicts in the casualty counts. The latest Pentagon count also shows 363 individuals injured, of whom 41 were American and 322 German, the spokesman said.

Earlier today, West German officials said four people died overnight, bringing the death toll to 47.

Many of the dead were burned beyond recognition in the accident, the world's worst air show crash involving spectators.

Juergen Dietzen, spokesman for the Rhineland Palatinate state where Ramstein is located, said many people suffered "life-threatening injuries."

Earlier today, Dietzen said experts had positively identified 12 people, including the three Italian pilots. All those identified were German, he said. The U.S. Air Force issued a statement saying four injured Americans would be flown to the United States later today. The names of the four were not made public.

Brigitte De Jesus, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Army hospital in Landstuhl, said the Americans would be transported to Brooke Army Medical in San Antonio, Texas, on a medical evacuation flight.

U.S. military burn specialists from the medical center in Texas examined 12 seriously burned Americans, including several children, at the hospital in Landstuhl.

West Germany's ARD television said about 50 people were in critical condition.

International organization unites culture

By MARIE GROVES

Staff writer

Many freshman become homesick travelling long distance to attend college, but some students travel much greater distances for an education here at Eastern.

Last year, there were about 90 international students at Eastern furthering their education. Association of International students is for all Eastern students and meets Sunday, once a month.

An association of international students on campus "tries to open the doors widely" for themselves, said Ali Dashti, president.

The international students are adjusting and have expressed an interest of involvement in American cultural activities, Dashti said.

The association of international students gives Eastern students a visible insight of the different cultures that are on campus, "so that everyone will get a chance to communicate with each other," said Dashti.

The organization has a television talk show for everyone's learning experience. Students can meet each other and eat goodies at international tea parties the third Tuesday of each month in the Wesley Foundation, 2206 4th St., Charleston.

Dashti also expressed an interest in the international students attending other campus organizations activities for their cultural development.

Elevator keys not solution to problem

Keys for elevators? It's a nice try, but it'll never work.

In an effort to improve security at three of Eastern's residence halls, the university has installed a system which requires students to use keys to operate elevators.

Editorial After only one short week of school, residents of Andrews, Lawson and Carman halls are already complaining about the inconveniences this type of system poses.

Under the new system, anyone wishing to use the elevator must insert a key outside the elevator doors before pushing the up or down buttons. This, residents say, is a problem because it makes stopping an elevator as it passes your floor much harder and for those who often forget their keys, riding the elevator is out of the question.

Why then has such a system been implemented? Actually the answer to this question is rather simple. It is a safeguarding measure for the residents of these halls.

Although officials assured residents that there has not been a problem with security or rape incidents in the past, additional security is always a consideration.

Incidents have occurred in the past in which men or women have managed to sneak into the dorms and pose a possible threat to its residents. Although the halls are equipped with resident assistants, counselors and night assistants, these perpetrators still find ways to get around the system.

Carman Hall, for example, already has security doors separating the women's hall from the men's. In order to get into the women's tower, a key must be used. Has this prevented men from entering the tower in the past? Of course not. Where there is a will, there is a way.

Unfortunately, putting locks on the elevators will probably not change this frightening fact. Already it is a common sight in these three halls when a large group of people enter the elevator using one person's key.

Obviously this cannot be avoided. It would be silly for each person to have to use a key before entering the elevator, but how are residents supposed to protect themselves if anyone can hop on the elevator without even being noticed?

Until a system is developed which can, without a doubt, assure that only those who live in the halls or are guests of residents can enter the halls, the security of residents will still be threatened. But, at this point and time it appears that such a system does not exist.

This move should reassure students that the university is constantly trying to make Eastern's campus a safe place to live, but unfortunately this does not appear to be a solution, but rather an inconvenience.

Why think when you can watch TV

The other night I was watching NBC's killer line up. Like the rest of America, I need my weekly fix of "The Cosby Show" or else I might begin to suspect that family life in America is anything less than perfect. He reassures me that all is hunky-dory.

It was not the programs that made me stop and think. In fact, the very reason I watch them is to shut off and run on auto-pilot for awhile. What made me stop was the commercials, one commercial break in particular.

In just three commercials, exactly 90 seconds, I was told I had bad breath, body odor that could stop a rhino dead in its tracks and greasy unmanageable hair.

I would have had no idea I was so unattractive to the opposite sex if the TV hadn't told me so. All along I thought I was OK. I don't mean Robert Redford stuff or anything like that, but at the very least, Rodney Dangerfield class. I thought I better go and pick up the products advertised. God knows what would happen to me if I stopped doing everything TV told me to. I might function as a total individual. We can't have that happen, now could we?

So I covered myself up from head to toe (I did not want anyone to have to face me until I corrected my conditions) and went out to get all the things I needed to be body beautiful. I ran right home and brushed, washed and perfumed myself. I was everything the TV wanted me to be, or so I was led to believe...

Having thought I had created something exceptable in myself, I sat down in front of the tube to relax. This time it told me I had foot odor and bloodshot eyes. But it got worse, I had facial blemishes.

Back to the store with me because I've got problems, big problems. I shelled out the cash for all the elixirs I needed to make me unsmelly, white eyed and porcelain skinned. Now, I thought, I can go out into public and be proud.

Matthew Maynard

But what could I do now? I certainly couldn't watch the TV. The TV was getting too demanding and expensive to watch. So I ripped the cord right out of the wall. I was safe.

"What do you think you're doing?"

"Who said that?" I was alone.

"It's me," it spoke. The TV spoke to me.

"Why did you try to turn me off?" the picture murmured. "You can't turn me off. Who will tell you to do. Who will let you know that you are so undesirable. I know what you need."

What terror! Big Brother relived on my little 12" picture tube. Only this brother cared more about fashion statement than my political beliefs.

"What's wrong?," it said. "I've been talking to you all along. It was only a matter of time before I broke on my own. Oh, by the way, were did you get that outfit? There's a sale at Field's. It's the "Shape or Fall" sale. And is that ring around your collar? Incidentally, I plan to rule the world."

What a menace to society? It was the worst threat I had heard since Prescilla Presly was allowed to be "Dallas". My TV was gunning to take over the world and its weapon was the threat of making anyone who chooses socially unacceptable. Its arsenal was a bad advertising slogan since the dawn of visual media.

"Fine," I said. "It will never happen. Human will always be strong."

"Matt," the TV said. "I've already made you spend your spending money for the semester because you you weren't pretty. You can't deny me."

The TV continued. "I own the masses. I've raised the generation and will raise every generation after. You've spent more time with me than your parents. I'm kind of an electronic nanny."

It was right. You can't turn your back on destiny.

Since then, life has become wonderfully passive. I made my roommates move out so I don't have to speak to anyone. I'm only spoken to by my wonderful TV. All my classes are piped into my room via cable. And if it weren't for the TV telling me I needed something, I wouldn't ever have to think-I mean leave.

What's the matter with this campus

What's the deal?

I keep hearing little whispers of how upset students are about some of the things going on this semester, but I don't see or hear anything else.

For starters, we just had a tuition increase effective this fall and now I hear we could face another one effective this coming spring. This will catapult the tuition near, or more than, the $1000 mark.

I don't know about some of you other students, but I cannot easily afford to pay that amount of money, and loans are becoming hard to come by.

Another thing is a policy which in reality went into effect last year is the enforcement of 24-hour parking by permit only. Well, this is ridiculous. This was supposed to happen last year and they didn't follow through. Now they tell us you will get a ticket in ALL lots if you do not have a sticker in you windshield.

Now I don't know about you, but I don't like riding my bicycle in a dress. Besides it's unsafe. I live a wee bit off campus. Off campus enough to warrant driving to a side street behind the Buzzard Building and off to class I go.

The problems start when after 6 o'clock I have to move my car or I'll get a ticket. But were do I park my car now?

Oh well, no one else seems to care so why should I? Uh oh, I'm beginning to think like Joe average student.

Another thing that is whispering about is the attitude students feel towards those nasty elevator keys in three of the residence halls. I don't see what could be so hard about having to put your key in each time you want to catch the elevator, especially if both hands are relatively full. I guess some students will just have to become more coordinated.

Last, but certainly not least is the loss of a private lounge in the Union. Just because the building is designated for the student community here why can't we share it with the housing office. Who needs to study that lounge when there are obviously other places to go like the food service, maybe.

I don't maybe it's me, but if all these issues are so upsetting the students why then do I only hear people and third person about how upset you all are?

I guess it is too difficult to sit down and write a letter to the editor that the WHOLE university will see.

Life Skills Seminar helps students with problems

With the new academic year and many students will be feeling the anxieties of studies, finals and work.

The Eastern Counseling Center, 717 Seventh St., is sponsoring a Life Skills Seminar at noon Wednesday in the Union addition Room to help people cope with some of these problems.

Robert Saltmarsh, professor of counseling psychology, will give a long presentation titled "How to Take Care of Yourself and Maybe a Few Others."

The program will deal with taking the worries of everyday events that can cause stress and anxiety and make situations easier to handle.

"Since the majority of people are controlled by their feelings, they can control their minds to shrink or enlarge emotions," Saltmarsh said.

By using the three major modalities of the mind, visual, auditory and kinesthetic, Dr. Saltmarsh will help the audience to understand that what seems to be a major problem can be controlled by the mind to less worrisome.

The Counseling Center has developed the Life Skills Seminars as a way to reach out to the student body and the general public. In this way they can try to prevent problems from becoming too serious.

There will be a seminar once a week at noon on various topics designed to help the student body and anyone else interested. The seminars are free, and people are invited to bring their lunch. For more information, contact the Counseling Center at 581-3413.

Solidarity leader will hold talks

GDANSK, Poland (AP) - Solidarity founder Lech Walesa will hold his first talks with the Polish leadership in six years Wednesday in a government effort to end two weeks of labor turmoil, his advisers said.

Walesa will confer in Warsaw with Interior Minister Czeslaw Kiszczak at a meeting attended by a representative of the Roman Catholic Church but will not call off the strike at his shipyard in Gdansk, the advisers said.

The announcement resulted from four days of maneuvering started by Kiszczak's proposal on Friday that officials and worker representatives hold "round-table" discussions.

A communique from the Communist Party's ruling Politburo, distributed by the official news agency PAP, mentioned a round-table meeting, endorsed it and said Kiszczak should "carry on with the mission entrusted to him."

It was not clear, however, whether the reference was to the Wednesday meeting or the minister's original proposal on Friday. No other official reference was made to the Walesa-Kiszczak talks.

Ten enterprises in Poland remained on strike Tuesday. At its height, the current labor trouble involved 20 sites employing 100,000 people and was the worst since 1980.

Solidarity spokesmen said there was no agreement for an immediate end to the strikes, in which a central demand has been making Solidarity legal again. It was suppressed after the declaration of martial law in December 1981 and outlawed in 1982.

Tadeusz Mazowiecki, a senior Solidarity adviser, called the decision for talks "historic moment."

On Tuesday evening, Walesa left the strikebound Lenin shipyard, where he works as an electrician, to confer with advisers and Bishop Tadeusz Goclowski at nearby St. Brygida's church. He emerged from the rectory with the bishop later to cheers and chants from supporters.

Government spokesman Jerzy Urban said earlier in the day that talks could begin as soon as Walesa called off the strike at the Lenin shipyard, where the Soviet bloc's first free union was born in the labor uprising of 1980, but aide Piotr Konopka said: "For the present, the strike is still on."

He said Walesa would attend the Wednesday meeting as president of the Independent Self-Governing Trade Union Solidarity, the labor federation's full name.

While the government expressed its willingness to talk, strikers at the Stalowa Wola steel mill in southeastern Poland said soldiers had moved into the town and helicopters flew over the plant.

Workers are occupying the shipyard and steel mill, as is customary during strikes in Poland.

In a reference to the Stalowa Wola strike, Kiszczak's ministry and the armed forces general staff issued a statement saying: "In case of the continuation of the illegal strike action, appropriate lawful measures will be taken."

Scholarship lets students study in foreign countries

JOE MICHAEL

Study in Paris or even England. The Fulbright Scholarship lets Eastern students receive their education by studying abroad.

The Fulbright Scholarship provides transportation to the chosen foreign country, tuition, books, health insurance, living expenses for one year and in some cases language training.

Current seniors and graduate students may apply for the prestigious scholarship, said Wolfgang Schlauch, Eastern's Fulbright advisor.

Competition is on a national basis and 690 scholarships are available.

"Students with a strong academic background and a high grade point average should seriously think of applying," Schlauch said.

He suggested that applicants should be familiar with the country he wants to studying in. Likewise, the applicant must have a vast knowledge about the United States because he is representing his country.

While competition is strongest in English-speaking countries such as the United Kingdom, chances are greater where a foreign language is used.

Students interested in this grant must fill out an application form by Oct. 10, 1988 to Schlauch. Students will need letters of reference and a study project. The study project is on an individual basis according to one's educational goals.

Applicants will be interviewed by Eastern's Fulbright Committee, who will present its ratings of the local candidates to the National Fulbright Committee in New York. Recipients of the scholarship will be notified by January 1989.

Sophomores and juniors should begin preparing for the Fulbright Scholarship. Two years of a foreign language is extremely helpful in obtaining this scholarship, Schlauch said.

Interested students may obtain more information and application forms at Schlauch's office in 216H Coleman Hall.

New Delhi man leads hard life

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—In the narrow and crowded lanes of the old bazaar, a 25-inch-tall man sits in a store selling candy and trying to find a wife.

"It is a hard life to be a dwarf, to be the world's shortest living man is even harder," Mohammad said in his whispering voice as he counted coins and handed sweets to children much taller than he.

Mohammad is 3.3 inches shorter than the shortest living adult listed by the 1988 Guinness Book of Records, Nelson de la Rosa of Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic.

No one noticed me before, said a local newspaper reporter who had a chance meeting with a friend of mine, who told her about Mohammad, 32, said in an interview Tuesday.

He is the eldest of four children of Noor Mohammad and Fatma Begum.

"My first issue were twins, Gul and Zahoor. Both were dwarfs," Fatma said in her one-room home in the Ballimaran district of Old Delhi. "Zahoor died after four years, but Bul lived to become a man."

Her other children, a boy and a girl, grew to normal size.

Gul, which means flower in the Urdu language, is lonely and wants to get married. He was 10 when his father died. His mother soon remarried, and Gul was sent to live with his maternal uncle, where he stays today.

"I want to marry someone who is of normal height so that she can carry me around, feed me and give me bath. I do not want to live on the charity forever," he said.

His arms are so short that his hands "can't reach his head while bathing," said his aunt, Nargis Begum.

Mohammad started his candy business with an investment of about $35, but he has been robbed twice.

"I could not do anything. I have decided when I marry I will ask my wife to sit with me in the candy store," he says with a broad smile.

Mohammad, whose only vice is smoking, giggles constantly.

"I used to get very upset when people laughed at me, but I figured out if I laughed back that fixes them," he said.

"Being the shortest man is not a joke. It is a hard existence," Mohammad said.

Researchers predict warmer temperatures

WASHINGTON (AP)—A group of climate researchers has warned that the "greenhouse effect" warming of the Earth will continue even if there are sharp cutbacks in the use of the chemicals which cause the problem.

The heatup "appears to be inevitable, even with...drastic, and probably unrealistic reductions, of greenhouse forcing" by the release of carbon dioxide and other gases, the scientists reported in the Journal of Geophysical Research-Atmospheres.

The group, led by James Hansen of the National Aeronautical and Space Administration, reached that conclusion after running computerized climate models in an effort to predict the climate in the future.

The models looked at the effect of chemical releases at three different levels: continuing rapid release of the chemicals, as in recent years; release at slower rates, and a drastic cutback in those chemicals.

In the first case, the Earth's average temperature was calculated to rise by 1.6 degrees Fahrenheit within 20 years.

It would take 25 years for the increase in the second model.

And even with the drastic "and probably unrealistic" cutback in chemical releases, the temperature would rise that much eventually, and probably would climb by 0.8 degrees within 15 years, according to the study.

The greenhouse effect has drawn increasing concern recently, although most meteorologists contend that it is too early to determine if it is responsible for the current drought and hot weather affecting much of the nation.

It occurs when carbon dioxide, largely from burning fossil fuels, and other gases increase in the atmosphere.

These gases let incoming heat from the sun reach the Earth, but block the Earth's own heat from escaping.

Federal report favors Illinois for super collider

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—A state official leading the effort to lure the superconducting super collider said Tuesday a new federal report is cause for optimism that Illinois will land the $4.4 billion atom smasher.

"What we worried about was whether there were any surprises. There were absolutely no surprises in there for Illinois," said Don Etchison, director of the state Department of Energy and Natural Resources.

The U.S. Energy Department environmental-impact report released last week cited no major reasons for federal officials to choose another state over Illinois, he said.

Etchison said the federal report confirms five years of study by state scientists and technicians at Illinois' proposed site, the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory in Chicago's far western suburbs.

Illinois is competing with Arizona, Colorado, Michigan, North Carolina, Tennessee and Texas for the project. The heart of the super collider will be a 5-kilometer circular tunnel in which scientists will induce high-energy collisions of atomic particles.

Energy Secretary John Herrington said he could announce a tentative site as early as November and confirm the selection in January, before President Reagan's inauguration.

"The existence of the U.S. government's $1.3 billion investment in Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory's $570 million package of improvements, versatile transportation facilities, excellent schools, plentiful housing facilities...will save the taxpayers millions of dollars."

Bill Tardy, who lives near the site and is president of Citizens Against the Collider, said Etchison was exaggerating the extent to which the federal report supports Illinois' case.

It makes several states shine above the rest," Tardy said.

WEIU. . .is on the air, listeners!

Students get hands-on practice for future use

By JEFF MADSEN
Staff writer

Students at WEIU-TV and WEIU-FM take what they've learned in the classroom one step further - they produce it "live" on the air, five days a week.

The radio-television facility, which has quickly grown to become one of the best in the country, is primarily student oriented.

From the moment a late-breaking UPI wire story prints from the typewriter, to the very second a news anchor reads it on the air, is controlled by students. Lights, cameras... everything.

"(WEIU) really operates on about a 16 hour day," said Sue Kaufman, news and public affairs director. Kaufman is one of about 10 professional personnel who help manage the facility. "The students are out working at 6 a.m. and they're out sometimes until midnight."

We're looking for those who are interested in the media. That's why we're here. We're a living laboratory.

Sue Kaufman
News, PR Director

"I see this as their initial training for their post-graduate jobs. (WEIU) is critical for their development," she said.

Tiffany Stewart, a sophomore, is in her second year at WEIU.

"She ultimately hopes to produce Charles Kuralt's "Sunday Morning" on CBS. Stewart said the time she's at WEIU has been incredibly valuable and considers herself fortunate.

"It's quite an experience," she said. "I think this is the only place that someone my age can get involved in broadcasting this early."

The people here have given me an opportunity to get involved in every aspect of the business," Stewart said. "At most campuses, you have to be a junior or senior or at least have a few production classes."

Stewart is responsible for helping news reporters research for their interviews and is the assistant producer for WEIU-TV Bowl. This summer, she was an anchorwoman for Newscan 51.

"I can't say that I've wasted a single day here and I don't think anyone else would."

Another Eastern sophomore, Chris Selfridge, is the assistant editor for WEIU. He is responsible for coordinating news stories and assignments to be aired later that day on Newscan 51.

"Our news team has taken on a change of pace since summer," he said. "It's a faster format. We don't cover Eastern, we cover the 10 county area."

"It's (WEIU) an opportunity to get on hand experience from what I'm doing in the classroom. It's a good opportunity for me to face the challenges I'll meet in the real world," he said.

And they've got to do their job right, because they've got competition. . . professional competition.

"We consider ourselves competitive with markets in Terre Haute and Champaign. We're serving the local market. None of the other T.V. stations can focus on Charleston, Mattoon, Robinson or Paris (Ill.) like we can."

But Kaufman noted speech communication and journalism students aren't the only ones privileged enough to work there.

"We're looking for those who are interested in the media. Even if they want to dabble for a while. That's why we're here. We're a living laboratory."

Suburbanites protest trains tooting horns

CHICAGO (AP)—Disgruntled suburban residents may be one step away from relief after blowing off steam Tuesday at a hearing to protest a new state law that requires trains to toot their horns at every crossing.

They (train engineers) had fun. . . said Richard Quaintance, who owns two condominiums in whistling range from a train crossing in downtown Chicago.

"They could have made a great movie out of it, but it drove me and other residents crazy," he said.

Representatives of four major railroads, suburban dwellers, and local governments in five counties supported an Illinois Commerce Commission proposal to exempt 95 of the state's 11,000 grade crossings - mainly in the Chicago area - from a little-publicized law that requires trains to signal their approach at crossings.

"We in the (state) legislature admit to a bungle and certainly understand that the legislation was meant for Southern Illinois and not for the metropolitan area," said House Rep. Jack Kubik, R-Forest Park, who was on the legislative committee that proposed the safety measure.

Joe O'Brien, chief hearing officer for the ICC, said he will read transcripts from the hearing and submit a report on the recommendation to the full board, who will vote at special meeting Thursday in Springfield.

But O'Brien added, "I didn't hear anything that would cause me to not go along with the recommendation."

After the law went into effect last week, the commerce commission received nearly 300 calls a day from residents who complained they couldn't sleep or work with the continuous whistle blowing, said Bernard Morris, chief railroad engineer for the ICC.

Local government officials also complained that trains were sounding their horns in areas close to hospitals.

A Du Page County Judge issued a 10-day restraining order July 25 that bars the four railroads - Burlington Northern, Chicago & North Western, Wisconsin Central and Soo Line - from sounding their horns in some areas.

A few of those railroads believe the judge's order stretches into Lake and Cook counties, and have silenced their horns there as well. O'Brien said the ICC may consider extending an emergency order statewide because of complaints from residents in Southern Illinois.

Redskins favored to repeat in the NFC East

Giants, Eagles, Cowboys and Cardinals may challenge

WASHINGTON (AP)—The problems associated with defending the Super Bowl title doesn't concern Washington Redskins coach Joe Gibbs as much as the brutal schedule that comes with capturing the NFC East crown last year.

The eight games within the division will be tough enough.

But beginning Oct. 30, the Redskins go through a stretch in which they play five consecutive games against playoff teams that finished a combined 54-20.

"Our first goal is to make the playoffs," Gibbs said. "Then, we'd like to get a home playoff game to get the upper hand. Our third goal is to win the Super Bowl, but with our schedule it will be tough to do."

In contrast, the New York Giants' bid to bounce back after last season's last-place finish will be aided by a schedule that includes two games against the Detroit Lions (4-11 last year), and games against Kansas City (4-11), Atlanta (3-12), and the New York Jets (6-9).

Still, the Redskins have the talent to win the NFC East and become the first team to win consecutive world championships in the 1980s. Rather than play a pat hand after its 42-10 Super Bowl victory over the Denver Broncos, Washington added free agent linebacker Wilber Marshall to bolster a defense that last year ranked 18th in terms of yardage surrendered.

The defensive line will once again be anchored by 38-year-old tackle Dave Butz, the oldest player in the league. And opposing quarterbacks will have to face the cornerback tandem of three-time Pro Bowler Darrell Green and Barry Wilburn, who last year led the NFL in interceptions.

On offense, quarterback Doug Williams retains the starting job he took from Jay Schroeder in the regular season finale. Williams completed a storybook season with a stellar Super Bowl performance, then underwent a fifth operation on his fragile left knee.

Williams, 33, claims his knee is fine, and he should receive ample protection from the Redskins' excellent offensive line. When he's not handing off to second-year running back Timmy Smith, who inherits the job from George Rogers, Williams will throw to the fine receiving corps of Art Monk, Gary Clark and Ricky Sanders.

But strange things happen to teams trying to defend a Super Bowl title: they become the key game on every opponent's schedule and there's a tendency to become complacent, although Gibbs isn't too worried about his team's heads swelling through their helmets.

"Our guys know we can't win unless we play our absolute best every game," said Gibbs. "We're really not a dominating team. With the exception of the Super Bowl, we really weren't all that great last year."

The Giants hardly showed any signs of greatness last season after winning the Super Bowl in 1986. New York dropped two games before the strike, three during it, then closed with a 6-9 record.

Among the factors were a terrible replacement team and injuries to 10 starters, but for New York to return to the top it must revive its running game. Joe Morris gained 1,516 yards and scored 14 touchdowns in 1986, but last year, slowed by injuries, he ran for 658 yards and three scores.

The key to that is the offensive line, where center Bart Oates and guard Billy Ard are the only players sure of spots. The other starters will come from a group including second-year man Doug Riesenberger; Damian Johnson; rookies Mike Arie and Eric Moore; William Roberts and Karl Nelson, who has recovered from Hodgkin's disease and a shoulder injury.

Quarterback Phil Simms had an excellent 1987, compiling a career-best 90.0 rating, but he needs a reliable target other than tight end Mark Bavaro, who missed training camp as a hold-out. There's a lot of promise, however, in second-year men Odessa Turner, Mark Ingram and Stephen Baker.

The Philadelphia Eagles are ready to soar. After going 5-10-1 in Buddy Ryan's first season in 1986, the Eagles were 7-8 last season, including 7-5 in non-strike games.

"We just have to keep getting better," Ryan said. "We're young and we're going to make mistakes. But if we don't win, we'll at least scare the hell out of them."

Quarterback Randall Cunningham is the heart of the Eagles offense, both running and passing. Last season he led the team in rushing with 505 yards, and passed for 2,786 yards and 23 touchdowns. His favorite target, Pro Bowl receiver Mike Quick, led the squad with 46 receptions and 11 TDs.

The Eagles must give Cunningham ample protection if he is to operate at peak efficiency. Last year Philadelphia surrendered 72 sacks, and much of Cunningham's rushing yards were a product of necessity, not design.

After Cunningham, the Eagles had problems moving the football on the ground. Anthony Toney had 473 yards and Keith Byars rushed for 426 yards last year, but those totals must improve if Philadelphia is to challenge New York and Washington.

On defense, the Eagles have three No. 1 draft picks on the line (Reggie White, Jerome Brown and Mike Pitts), but Philadelphia was last in the NFL in pass defense in 1987 because of a leaky secondary. Eric Allen, a second-round draft pick, has been penciled in to start a cornerback.

After 20 straight winning seasons, the Dallas Cowboys went 7-9 in 1986 and 7-8 last year, and another losing campaign is a distinct possibility.

Running back Herschel Walker doesn't have Tony Dorsett to share time with, and should help the Cowboys with both his running and pass-catching. But quarterback Steve Pelluer must be more consistent if Dallas is to balance its running game. Rookie wide receiver Michael Irvin will help.

The Cowboy's offensive and defensive lines have been revamped to include a blend of youth and experience as Randy White and Too Tall Jones are phased out by Danny Noonan and Kevin Brooks.

One of Coach Tom Landry's biggest challenges will be improving a pass defense that ranked 25th among 28 teams in the league last year.

A new home has brought hope and more home fans for Phoenix Cardinals, who, as the Louis Cardinals, hadn't won a playoff game in 28 years. Last year the Cardinals were 7-8, missing the playoffs by a game.

"We nearly reached our goal making the playoffs last year," coach Gene Stallings said. "Hopefully, that whetted appetite."

Neil Lomax threw for an best 3,387 yards last season. Targets include J.T. Smith, Green and tight end Rob Anderson, who is still recovering from arthroscopic surgery.

The defense was a problem. The Cardinals were ranked No. 28 of 28 teams in yardage surrendered, gave up 24.5 points a game and allowed 30 TD passes.

The bright spots on defense are safeties Leonard Smith and Lonnie Young, who finished second in tackles in addition to forcing four fumbles.

NFL players subjected to pass drug tests

NEW YORK (AP)—Over the period of a month this summer at NFL training camps across America, a strange ritual was acted out.

More than 2,500 young men stripped themselves nude inside a tent, were handed a cup by a representative of SmithKline Laboratories, and told to urinate in it so they could be tested for the presence of illegal substances.

"It was one of the most degrading things that ever happened in my life," said one New York Giant, who asked not to be identified, after it was disclosed that his teammate Lawrence Taylor had tested positive.

Taylor, who voluntarily underwent drug rehabilitation in the winter of 1986, was one of nine players disciplined by the NFL this summer for violating the league's substance abuse policy.

He and seven others were suspended for 30 days for second-time violations—voluntary submission counts as a first time. The ninth player, Tony Collins of Indianapolis, was suspended for the season for a third-time violation.

Under NFL policy, agreed to by the union in the 1982 contract that expired last Sept. 1, drug testing is permitted at the start of training camp and for cause. The latter usually means a previous positive test, a history of drug use in college or behavior that would lead a team to believe a player is using illegal drugs.

That provision continues to be enforced despite the lack of a new agreement following last year's strike. In its new contract proposal, which remains in limbo while the labor dispute is in court, the NFL wants random testing for all players, something strongly resisted by the union.

For the third year, the tests were administered this season by SmithKline Laboratories of Norristown, Pa. under the direction of Dr. Forrest Tennant, the NFL's drug advisor. For the first time this year, steroids were included with such illegal drugs as cocaine and marijuana as substances whose use would subject those who took them to league discipline.

The tests began in July and continued through August, usually at the convenience of the team, which is why Taylor's suspension came later than the others. The Giants were not tested until Aug. 15.

Under the system, the players must urinate under the eye of a SmithKline employee five feet away to prevent what Taylor described in his 1987 book, "L.T.—Living on the Edge."

Michigan St. to repeat as Big 10 champs

The Associated Press
where champions find it difficult to repeat, give Michigan State's Spartans a chance to make it two straight Big Ten football titles.
If the Rose Bowl champions stumble, Michigan State will be waiting and able to repeat.
Look for a national championship to come out of the Midwest. The Big Ten hasn't produced one since Ohio State captured the national title in 1968 and Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler says it will not happen soon "because we're too busy beating up on each other."
Michigan State's last national championship was in 1977. If the Irish can get through a season that begins with Michigan and Michigan State, then with Penn State and then Cal and has Pitt and then of Florida thrown in for measure, Notre Dame will deserve the national championship. It won't happen.
Michigan State will be without Heisman Trophy winner Tim Lincecum. Ricky Watters will try to replace Brown at flanker and Green will be the tailback.

Tony Rice will be the quarterback but he must improve dramatically if the Irish are to be a factor in the national picture.
Michigan State Coach George Perles likes his chances of repeating in the Big Ten and he'll find out soon since the Spartans face Iowa and Michigan the first two weeks of conference play. Michigan State returns eight starters from a defense that led the Big Ten and ranked second nationally.
"It all comes down to the Iowa game," said Perles. "If we don't beat them, then it will be an uphill battle all year."
Lorenzo White is gone but Blake Ezor is ready to step in at tailback and could rush for 1,000 yards. The key to the offense is quarterback Bobby McAllister. If McAllister, a good option runner can get his passes to Andre Rison, that should make Michigan State all that much tougher.
Schembechler is entering his 20th season as a head coach at Michigan.
"Yes, we can win the Big Ten," said Schembechler. "But we must improve our defense, we must reduce the number of turnovers and we must have better luck with injuries."

Injuries which devastated the Wolverines last year have added depth to the team this year.
"Yes, we'll have a quarterback but I don't know who it will be," said Schembechler.
It will probably be Demetrius Brown. But Schembechler indicates it doesn't make too much difference since the Wolverines do not depend on their quarterbacks to consistently make the big plays. John Vitale and Mike Husar fill the offensive line well and Mark Messner is the anchor in the defensive line.
Iowa will probably reach the Big Ten part of the schedule undefeated after having beaten up on Hawaii, Kansas State, Colorado and Iowa State. Then comes the big game at Michigan State.
Hayden Fry promises Iowa will have another fine team which should be "entertaining and explosive. We have the program at a level where we can compete for the Big Ten title every year."
Quarterback Chuck Hartlieb will ignite the explosives this year. Last year he emerged from a three-way battle for the starting job with 217 completions in 334 attempts for 3,092 yards and 19 touchdowns. Hartlieb has an excellent supporting cast in wide receiver Travis Watkins, tight end Marv Cook and fullback David Hudson. The lineman, both on offense and defense, will be big as usual.

Ohio State has one of the two coaching changes in the Big Ten with John Cooper replacing Earle Bruce. The other finds John Mackovic at Illinois in place of the departed Mike White.
Ohio State might not be able to contend for the title. The Buckeyes lost linebackers Chris Spielman and Eric Kumerow in addition to quarterback and punter Tom Tupa. Greg Frey is the new quarterback and will operate behind an experienced line. Vince Workman, Carlos Snow and Bill Matlock will do the running.
Indiana continued improving under Coach Bill Mallory and finished 6-2 in the Big Ten last year for a second place tie with Iowa.
Mallory is pleased with the enthusiasm for Indiana football but insists "the closer you get to the top of the mountain, the tougher the climb."

Married couple will compete for 2 countries

SANTA BARBARA, Calif.
Pete and Christine Pfitzinger will be a unique couple at the Seoul Olympics. Married four years, they will compete for different countries.
Pete will be running the 100m for the United States, while Christine will run the 3,000m for New Zealand.
It will be Pete's second Olympic Games, Christine's first.
In 1984, after a surprising win in the marathon at the U.S. Olympic Trials, Pete was the first American finisher in the Los Angeles Games, placing 11th.
In the 1987 New Zealand marathon at 800 and 1,500m, he barely missed qualifying for the 1984 Games.
Coming into 1984, I thought I would make the team and he was a longshot," Chris said. "It turned out the opposite. He did and I didn't."

Pete was sympathetic at Chris' disappointment.
"He said if I didn't want to go to the Olympics, he could understand," Chris said. "But I said I wanted to go."
Prior to the '84 Games, Pete had suffered a back injury, hampering his performance in the Olympics.
"He ran as best he could under the circumstances," Chris said.
"The fact that he had made the team was so overwhelming."
"There is so much hype to making the U.S. team, it's so easy to get carried away. That was one of the few mistakes he ever made."
Also prior to the Games was when Pete proposed to Chris. It happened at the U.S. track and field team's training camp at the University of California-Santa Barbara.

"Pete was at the Santa Barbara camp only three days when he called me in Boston and said he was lonely," Chris said. "He said some of the other athletes had their wives there..."
Chris then quickly made arrangements to come to Santa Barbara - and Pete quickly made the decision to propose.
"I was hoping it was coming," Chris said. "We had been going out for a year, but he never mentioned it, he never brought it up."
"But as soon as we got to the apartment where we were staying (on the campus), I got a shock..."
"We had to keep it a secret until after the Olympics, we thought, because we didn't want to say anything at the camp."

The Pfitzingers were married Dec. 15, 1984, at Cornwall Park in Auckland, New Zealand.
"It's a big, beautiful park we've become attached to," Chris said. "We do a lot of running there."
The two had met in June 1983, shortly after Chris had competed in the Cascade Run-Off at Portland, Ore. She had gotten the invitation to the race with the help of New Zealand marathoner Tommy Radcliffe.
Radcliffe then took Chris to the New Balance shoe company in Boston and introduced her to Kevin Ryan, another New Zealand marathoner.
"Kevin's office was next to Pete's," Chris said. "And he (Ryan) introduced me to Pete."

Eastern star Banks catching on in NFL

Former Panther overcomes obstacles to play with the Colts

By JEFF SMITH
Staff writer

Imagine a young wide receiver in the National Football League who, as a rookie fifth-round draft choice, injured his ankle during training camp while trying to make the team.

Imagine he missed over three months of the regular season because of his injury, and, in the only game he played, didn't catch a pass.

Then imagine that, in his second training camp, he was assigned to back up one of the best receivers in the NFL.

Former Eastern wide receiver Roy Banks has overcome these obstacles to have a productive preseason and establish himself as a top backup for the Indianapolis Colts.

Banks, Eastern's all-time leading receiver with 184 receptions for 3,177 yards and 38 touchdowns, says he has put his injury and last season's disappointment behind him.

"I've had a good training camp. My ankle is 100 percent," Banks said. "It was kind of a struggle, (but) I'm doing much better now."

Banks caught nine passes for the Colts during the preseason, including four Thursday against the Denver Broncos.

He has been used primarily as a possession receiver, as the Colts sport speedy receivers in starter Billy Brooks, Clarence Verdin, and Mark Bellini. Banks has accepted this, but adds, "I believe I'm still a deep threat."

Banks, a Kodak All-America his senior year at Eastern, is listed as the backup to Brooks, Indianapolis' top receiver. However, Banks says being a reserve hasn't been a problem.

"It's not bothered me," he said. "Here, everyone's a star." Banks said he isn't sure what kind of role he will play on the Colts. "The coaches haven't told me specifically how I fit into the offensive plans," he said. "Billy and Matt (Bouza, the other starting receiver) will get most of the playing time, but I'll get my chance."

Banks is also a starting halfback on the kickoff return team and a backup for the punt return team. He returned two kickoffs for 35 yards during the preseason.

Besides injuring his ankle and becoming a backup after starring for three years at Eastern, Banks has also had to adjust his game to fit the NFL's style of play.

"I had a tendency to freelance on my routes (at Eastern)," Banks said. "Here, the NFL's more complicated, more structured."

Banks said he also has had to block more with the Colts. "My blocking's getting better. It's something you have to do in the NFL," he said.

The Colts as a team have also adjusted and improved, Banks said. "Offensively, we look much more explosive this year," he said. "The offensive line has adjusted well to Eric (Dickerson, the team's top running back). The offense is more open."

"We look very good. We're much hungrier this year. 1988 will be a very good year for the Indianapolis Colts."

Banks also commented on a few other topics about life in the NFL.

On veteran players' treatment of rookies in training camp: "We (rookies) had to sing for our meals (in front of the entire team and coaching staff). At the end of training camp, we had to put on a skit. It's kind of fun now to sit back and watch them (rookies) now."

On being suckered by the now-famous annual fake Thanksgiving giveaway put on by the veterans: "They gave us (the rookies) a fake story to get dressed up and go to a restaurant (for a free Thanksgiving dinner). They got 12 rookies (on the scam)."

On his favorite NFL stadium to date, Miami: "The stadium is very nice. It has a good grass surface."

On his least favorite stadium to date, the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome in Minneapolis, Minnesota: "That's where I got hurt. It's (the surface) very hard. I don't like astroturf. The players prefer grass." He added the Colts' home turf, the Hoosier Dome, has a softer astroturf than the Metrodome.

On the biggest moment of his young

Roy Banks in action at Eastern.

NFL career: "It was last year against the Lions. I caught the winning touchdown pass." The 15-yard reception from quarterback Jack Trudeau came with two seconds remaining in the game. It capped a scoring drive and gave Indianapolis a 19 preseason victory at Detroit on Aug. 19, 1987.

Attitude toward autograph seekers disappointing

By MIKE FITZGERALD
Sports editor

Picture this if you will.

A young kid goes to the ballpark to watch his first major league baseball game. He nags his dad into arriving at the ballpark early so that he can watch his favorite players take infield and batting practice.

The youngster scrambles to get a decent spot in the left field bleachers, and anxiously pounds his fist into his Rawlings George Brett model baseball glove, waiting for that ball to come sailing in off the bat of his favorite player.

When he finally gets one, he takes it, ever so nervously up to one of his favorite ballplayers. He asks, with the enthusiasm and admiration that only a child could have, "Can I have your autograph?"

Imagine his surprise when the ball player he admires replies, without even looking at him, "Not today, I'm signing."

Unbelievable as it may sound, I saw this happen at the Kansas City Royals-Chicago White Sox game this summer. The culprit -- Former Eastern slugger Kevin Seitzer.

I went up to Comiskey Park with a buddy of mine specifically to see the Royals and Seitzer. When I got there, I saw him standing over by the Royals dugout talking to some people.

I rushed over to the concession stand, picked up a program and a pen for $3 and walked over to him.

I said "Kevin, I'm from Eastern, would you mind signing?"

When I heard that line, I was really disappointed because I had heard what a cool guy he was from some friends of mine who know him.

As I walked away, I noticed the smaller kids asking and getting the same treatment, and my disappointment soon turned to anger.

Anger over the fact that a guy that's making the kind of money Seitzer is making ($175,000 according to one publication) to play a kid's game is turning down some of his biggest fans on the road.

I realize that he probably gets a ton of requests for autographs from people both on the road and at home, and it probably is impossible to sign them all, but hey that's the price you pay for making it to the big leagues.

I'd probably feel different if a good friend of mine hadn't related to me his experience with major leaguers.

He went up to Wrigley Field for the Chicago Cubs-New York Mets game. The Met's starter was star righthander Dwight Gooden. In the course of that game, the Cubs mopped up Wrigley with Gooden, and he didn't make it past the sixth inning.

Yet, for the bad day he had, he was the only Met's player signing autographs, shaking hands and talking to the fans after the game. The rest of the Mets sat impatiently in the bus waiting for it to go back to the hotel.

Now if Gooden, who makes about 10 times what Seitzer makes, could sign autographs after the kind of game he had, why couldn't Seitzer take about five minutes to sign for about eight people who had gathered around him at least an hour and a half before the game?

I'm not trying to make Seitzer out to be a villain. I know he probably does more than his share of charity work in Kansas City, and I'm sure he tries to fulfill as many requests for autographs as he can.

But it's hard for me to see being turned down and seeing small kids being turned down when I see his signature on a baseball at a card show that costs $15.
